Carol Nordholt, Account Executive
CareWorks

For employers participating in the state fund for workers’ compensation insurance coverage, best practices in claims management is key in returning injured employees quickly and safely to work, as well as in helping to contain claim costs.

This month’s presentation will review the role of the Managed Care Organization (MCO) in assisting with best practices that will help employers achieve these goals.

Carol Nordholt’s experience includes sales and customer service with particular interest in employment issues and law. For the past twelve years she has been an Account Executive with CareWorks Managed Care Organization, and enjoys meeting with employers and coordinating services that assist in the management of their workers’ compensation programs. She holds a B.A. from Wittenberg University, Springfield, OH, and a J.D. from the University of Toledo College of Law.
